Dear Sir/Madam,

I would like to offer my services as a psychologist. Helping others and providing psychological support are of the utmost importance to me, as I believe that even in the most difficult situations, change is possible if it is accompanied by motivation and real support. As a recent member of the local community, I would also like to use my professional skills to contribute positively to society.

I offer extensive experience in supporting individuals from various backgrounds and age groups, primarily in English. I hold a psychology degree recognized by the Ministère de la Recherche et de l'Enseignement supérieur and am a member of the Société Luxembourgeoise de Psychologie (SLP).

I gained my initial experience in a psychological and pedagogical counseling center, where I conducted assessments with children and interviews with their parents. Later, I worked at a psychotesting clinic, where I performed psychomotor and personality assessments to evaluate individuals' fitness for high-responsibility professions such as truck drivers, ambulance drivers, firefighters, crane and forklift operators, police officers, and people working at heights. Many of these individuals were facing life difficulties, addiction, or psychological struggles. My role often went beyond assessments. I also had to provide first emotional and psychological support.

I also participated in an EU-funded project offering consultations to parents in public schools and kindergartens, helping them address parenting challenges and conducting educational workshops on child development.

Most recently, I worked as a school psychologist, where I was responsible for a wide range of psychological support tasks, as outlined in my CV. I often worked closely with individuals from underprivileged backgrounds many of whom could not afford private care and I was often their only accessible support.

Currently, I run my own private practice here in Luxembourg, but I also have availability and motivation to offer my services on a non-profit basis within your organization.

I would be honored to support your mission and am happy to provide further information or meet in person.

Warm regards,
Marcel Malecha
